

WILSON RECEIVES NOTIFICATION TODAY
OF HIS NOMINATION AS HEAD OF PARTY

GOVERNOR OF NEW JERSEY OFFICIALLY INFORMED OF NOMINATION FOR PRESIDENCY ON DEMOCRATIC TICKET AT SUMMER HOME AT SEAGIRT

ACCEPTANCE SPEECH

Outlining His Plans And Policies Should He Be Elected Before Large Assemblage Of Democrats.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Sea Girt, Aug. 7.—Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey was officially informed today that he had been chosen by the Baltimore convention as nominee for the presidency on the democratic ticket. Briefly and simply Governor Wilson was notified of his nomination by Senator-elect Ollie James of Kentucky who emphasized as he said that the governor had obtained the honor "untrammeled by obligation and unembarrassed by affiliations of any kind." Though the governor spoke in acceptance theoretically to the 52 members of the committee representing each state and territory in the United States, the speech was heard by a large crowd. Prominent democrats, governors of many states, their families, members of the women's national democratic league and others came to attend the exercises. From the veranda of the White House where the governors of New Jersey are wont to spend their summer, the nominee delivered his speech. Grouped beneath wide-spreading willows and elms were the more prominent guests, hedged in by clumps of ferns and bushes.

The governor read from manuscript. The platform he said was not a program but a practical document intended to show "that we know what the nation is thinking about and what it is most concerned about." The people, he added, were about to be asked not particularly to adopt a platform, but to entrust the democratic party with "office and power and the guidance of their affairs, and their desire now was to know what translation of action and policy he intends to give to the general terms of the platform, should he be elected."

Woodrow Wilson, stood smilingly on the veranda of the summer capitol here today fondling a little child and surveying the broad green meadow, where in the afternoon he was to be officially notified of his nomination to the presidency on the democratic ticket.

The child was his grand-niece. A wide space was roped off in which were to be seated some of the more prominent democrats. On the veranda where Governor Wilson was to deliver his speech of acceptance were wicker chairs for the 52 members of the notification committee and the guests invited by the committee and the guests in, (). A committee which included the 22 democratic governors.

After thanking the committee of notification and expressing his profound sense of responsibility in accepting the nomination, the Governor said he realized that he was expected to speak plainly, to talk politics and open the campaign "in words whose meaning no one need doubt." And he was expected to speak, he added, to the country as well as to the committee.

"We must speak," he continued, by way of preface, "not to catch us to, but to satisfy the thought and conscience of a people deeply stirred by the conviction that they have come to a critical turning point in their moral and political development."

"Plainly it is a new age," he went on. "It requires self-restraint not to attempt too much, and yet it would be cowardly to attempt too little. In the broad light of this day we stand face to face, with what? Plainly, not with questions of party, not with a contest for office, not with a petty struggle for advantage. With great questions of right and of justice, rather, questions of national development, of the development of character and of standards of action no less than of a better business system. The forces of the nation are asserting themselves against every form of special privilege and private control, and are seeking higher things than they have ever heretofore achieved."

"There are two great things to do. One is to set up the rule of justice and of right in such matters as the tariff, the regulation of the trusts and the prevention of monopoly, the adaptation of our banking and currency laws to the very uses to which our people must put them, the treatment of those who do the daily labor in our factories and mines and throughout all our great industrial and commercial undertakings, and the political life of the people of the Philippines, for whom we hold governmental power in trust for their service, not our own. The other, the additional duty is the great task of protecting our people and our resources and of keeping open to the whole people the doors of opportunity through which they must, generation by generation, pass if they are to make conquest of their fortunes in health, in freedom, in peace, and in contentment."

"We have got into trouble in recent years chiefly because these large things, which ought to have been handled by taking counsel with as large a number of persons as possible because they touch every interest and the life of every class and region, have in fact been too often handled in private conference. They have been settled by very small, and often deliberately exclusive groups of men who undertook to speak for the whole nation, or, rather, for themselves in the terms of the whole nation."

"The tariff question as dealt with in our time at any rate has not been business. It has been politics. Tariff schedules have been made up for the purpose of keeping as large a number as possible of the rich and influential manufacturers of the country in a good humor with the Republican party which desired their constant financial support. The tariff has become a system of favors, which the phraseology of the schedule was often deliberately contrived to conceal. Who, when you come back to the hard facts of the matter have been represented in recent years when our tariff schedules were being discussed and determined, not on the floor of congress, for that is not where they have been determined, but in the committee rooms and conferences? That is the heart of the whole affair. Will you. (Continued on page 6.)

District Attorney Trying to Prove That "Dago Frank" and "Whitey" Louis Were in Murder Car.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Aug. 7.—District Attorney Whitman is bending every effort to secure identifications of "Whitey" Louis, and "Dago Frank" Chirico, as two of those who occupied the murder car the night that Hermann Rosenthal was shot down and slain. William Shapiro, the chauffeur of the car, after looking the two suspects over, tremblingly told the police prosecutor that he could not identify them. With the lengthy written confession of "Bald Jack" Rose as a basis, private detectives went to work today to secure corroboration of Rose's story in which he told in detail of his alleged relations with Police Lieut. Becker as a collector of blackmail. Rose, in his confession, said he telephoned Becker immediately after the murder. The prosecutor is said to have obtained the telephone company's records showing that a telephone connection was made with Becker's house from a building near the scene of the murder a few minutes after Rosenthal was shot.

EXPERTS WILL TELL

Expert Testimony to be Given in Government Suit Against Wine Labeled as "Champagne."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Expert testimony in response to the question "what is champagne" is being sought by Homer Hall, Assistant United States district attorney of St. Louis, who arrived today to take depositions in a government case involving the labeling of six cases of an American made beverage as champagne. The contention of the government is that the liquor introduced which was made by a Sandusky, O., concern is wine and not champagne, the name champagne applying only to the wine made in Champagne in France, according to the agreement. The defendant company states that any wine that is foaming in the bottle is champagne regardless of where it is made.

Earl Rodgers Secures Writ of Habeas Corpus When Sentenced for Contempt of Court Yesterday.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Los Angeles, Aug. 7.—When Chief Counsel Earl Rodgers of the defense, in the trial of Clarence S. Darrow, appeared in court today, it was not after a night in the country jail to which he had been sentenced yesterday by Judge Hutton, for contempt of court. With a half hour remaining of the sentence the associates of Rodgers hurriedly made out application of his release on a temporary writ of habeas corpus which was presented before Judge Sewell of San Francisco, temporarily sitting in the court of presiding Judge Willis of the superior court. Judge Sewell granted the application, set the hearing for Monday morning and fixed Rodgers's bail at $200, which was furnished by Darrow. It is not likely that Rodgers will ever be called upon to serve his sentence as Judge Hutton, in imposing it, ordered the lawyer to be committed until 9 o'clock today, and fixed no period of imprisonment, otherwise, O. H. P. Mayer, the witness, who was on the stand when the trouble occurred yesterday was expected to resume it this morning for further cross-examination. Rodgers's designation of Mayer as a perjurer was responsible for his being adjudged in contempt.

PRENDERGAST SPEECH

Demonstration Follows Nominating Address by New York Leader at Chicago Gathering This Afternoon.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Aug. 7.—The last day's session of the national progressive convention was scheduled to meet at 11:00 a. m., but delayed in starting. The delegates were more prompt in reaching the hall than usual, many of them having mistaken the hour for meeting as ten o'clock. The nominations were looked forward to with interest, but not with the eager excitement which had attended the first appearance of Col. Roosevelt before the body of delegates. Col. Roosevelt had announced finally to go over the new party's declaration of principles. It was said the platform had been cut down to 3,500 words. There had been sharp discussion on the negro question and it was said that by a close vote a plank of the negro question had been inserted. Close secrecy was maintained as to the wording of the plank until Col. Roosevelt should have seen it. There also was said to be in the platform a plank dealing in some way with the liquor traffic.

Col. Roosevelt spent the morning in going over the draft of the platform which was submitted to him by the resolutions committee after its all night session. The colonel found a number of planks of which he did not approve in the form in which they were submitted. It is said that in the main the platform met with the colonel's approval, his objection being to its length and its phraseology.

According to the arrangement of the national progressive leaders, the convention will conclude today amid a display of oratorical pyrotechnics that is expected to attract thousands of spectators to the Coliseum. The platform was not given its final form until a comparatively late hour this morning, after the platform builders had worked nearly all night in efforts to get the various planks into shape satisfactory to Colonel Roosevelt.

The platform as presented for the colonel's consideration early in the week was greatly reduced in length.

Mexican Government Representatives to Discuss Peace in South With Rebel Leader.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Mexico City, Aug. 7.—Representatives of the government will meet Emiliano Zapata, the rebel leader at El Miligero, Morelos, tomorrow, to discuss measures aiming at the peace in the southern part of the republic. Zapata has declared he will consider no peace proposition unless it contemplates President Madero's resignation. Nevertheless the government has proceeded with the plans for the conference and its commissioners have been instructed to arrange an armistice if they can. Whether the commission will consider the resignation of Madero at all is highly improbable, but it is felt that once the peace conference is inaugurated, terms can be made.

Executive Legislative and Judicial Appropriation Bill Passed Today May Be Vetoed By the President.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Limited terms for civil service employees, the abolition of the commerce court and the revision of its five judges as extra circuit judges will be submitted to President Taft as provisions of the executive legislative and judicial appropriation bill. All these proposals already approved by the house were adopted by the senate today by a vote of 30 to 19.

Some of President Taft's friends say he will veto the bill although in doing so he will hold up his own salary, that of every member of congress and every United States judge. Such action on the president's part would also further delay the annual appropriation overdue since July 1. The bill carries an appropriation of 34 million dollars.

BLAZE IN GRAIN STACK IS DELAY TO THRESHERS

Abandon Work To Rescue Machine And Extinguish Fire at Farm Near Clinton Tuesday.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Clinton, Aug. 7.—A peculiar accident to the John Johnson farm just south of town yesterday afternoon might have proved very disastrous. C. M. Gale, and his machine and crew were threshing grain and had a good sized stack of straw which was suddenly discovered to be on fire, which raged rapidly. The machines were rapidly drawn out of danger and set up in a new place and the threshing continued.

HE KEEPS COOL IN THIN PONCEE SUIT

James C. Needham.

A few days ago an enterprising Washington photographer called on a lot of congressmen to get their pictures. He found the majority of them with their coats off and some wore kerchiefs (not red bandannas) around their necks in place of collars. Not Representative James C. Needham, the popular Californian, however. Mr. Needham wears a very thin poncee suit and sees no necessity for removing the coat.
Mr. Needham has been in congress for thirteen years. He is a progressive Republican and is just now wondering whether he should cast his fortunes with the Bull Moosers.

Judge Emory Speer.

Great feeling has been aroused in Mason Co. over the charges made by Col. W. A. Huff, former mayor of that city, against Federal Judge Emory Speer of the Georgia district. Col. Huff charges Judge Speer with corrupt conduct in office, and says that the judge has not been actuated by honest motives in keeping the large Huff estate thirteen years in the custody of the courts.
Col. Huff is under arrest on a charge of contempt of court. Hundreds of signatures have been obtained to a petition demanding the impeachment by congress of Judge Speer.

Jack Johnson's next appearance in court will be on Aug. 10, when he will have to answer in the United States court at Chicago to a charge of smuggling diamonds. Into this country, Johnson has appeared in court so much that he doesn't mind it any more, and his present legal troubles bother him not at all.

Hyman Pearlstone of Palestine, Texas, champion fan of the world, is now traveling with the Philadelphia Athletics. This is Pearlstone's sixth year with the Mackmen. He's president of a big grocery company in his home town, and every year takes a month off to travel with the Quaker City team.

"The boys are going in a little tough luck this season," says the champion fan, "but I would be with them just the same if they were in eighth place. I expect them to be in first place before I go back to Texas."

Jimmy Dunn, Johnny Kilbane's manager, blames Tom McCarney for the roasts Kilbane is getting on the coast for refusing to give Abe Attell a return fight. Labor day for the featherweight title. To get even with McCarney, Dunn says he will match Kilbane with Attell any time and in any other city than Los Angeles.

Herman Henry, the lightweight pugilist, who also is known as "Prince Henry," wants to be a schoolma'am in Chicago. He has made application to Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of schools in that city, for a position as teacher. Henry is said to be the only boxer in the ring who holds a diploma above that of a high school.

Baseball Notes.
Arthur Devlin, of the Boston Braves, is planning on taking a baseball team to Cuba next winter.
The Detroit Club has purchased pitcher George (Rube) Boehlen, of the Newark, Ohio State League team.

It looks as if Bill Dahlen had guessed right when he added Frank Allen to Brooklyn's pitching staff.
Baseball teams of the Typographical Union will hold their annual tournament in Boston on August 20.
Manager Charlie Doan is using "Cactus" Cravath as a pinch hitter for the Quakers, and "Cactus" is some hitter.

Clyde Milan, of the Washington team, has the jump on all the big leaguers in the race for base stealing honors for the season.

Eddie Plank, of the Athletics, and Joe Wood, of the Red Sox, are engaged in a fancy tussle for the pitching honors in the American League.
The Cubs miss Mordecai Brown tonight in a fifteen-round bout with present Eastern champion, This is the first trip the three-fingered star has missed in many moons.

A few years ago the White Sox were known as the "Fifteen Wonders." With not a man in the 500 class they are "hitless" still, but no longer "wonders."

He is a graduate of the Alentown Pa. institute. He is now training for his fight with Danny Goodman, at Aurora, Ill., on August 8, and is said to have about him a greater supply of books than he has of dumbbells and boxing gloves.

"If the big league managers were real wise, none but bushers would ever be selected to work against me," declared Ed Walsh, Chicago White Sox twirler, as he walked off the ball field at New York the other day. He had just been beaten by McConnell, the tall heaver who was a sensation in the Eastern league last year, but who was unable to win until pitted against Walsh. "Walter Johnson, Chief Bender, Jack Coombs and all the rest always have their hands full in beating the White Sox when I'm on the rubber," continued Walsh. "Let some bush phenom join a major league club and it seems as if I am just made to order for him. I pitch my usual game, but these youngsters, when pitted against me, seem to take a strange delight in pitching a heap better than my best efforts."

Some star twirlers have developed among the young men in the American league this year. Hugh Bedent has played a prominent part in Boston's success, and lately Ray Collins has been pitching sensationally for the Red Sox. Cashion, Engle and Musser have been doing some very fine work with Washington Nationals. In Jean Dubuc the Detroit Tigers have a star. Connie Mack has three new men in Houck, Pennock and Brown, while Jimmy Callahan, of Chicago, believes that in Bell he has picked up a diamond in the rough.

Pitcher Carlou is the latest Indian to become a star in the flinging department. He has won 12 straight games for the Hamilton team, of the Canadian League.

New York fans are rooting for Boston to win the American League pennant as they figure Rube Marquard a winner if the Giants and the Red Sox meet in the World's series.

J. L. Halligan, athletic director at Louisiana State University, has made a proposition to Manager Davis to take the Cleveland team to Baton Rouge for Spring training next year.

If Eddie Mensor, the Pirate youngster, can keep up his great work with the stick he will no doubt be presented with a slice of western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and northern West Virginia.

The drafting season opens on August 20, when the major league clubs will take their pick of minor league players at the following prices: Class A, $2,500; Class B, $1,500; Class C, $1,200; Class D, $750; Class E, $500.

With The Boxers.
The McMahon brothers, boxing promoters, have leased a club in New York and will give their first show Sept. 17.

Willie Lewis would like to get another crack at Bill Papke, but Bill has agreed to meet Eddie McGoory in Kenosha on Labor Day.

Freddie Welsh, former lightweight champion of England, and Johnny Summers have signed for a 20 round bout scheduled for Cardiff, Wales, August 15.

NEW YORK YACHT CLUB CRUISE BEGINS TOMORROW

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Glen Cove, L. I., Aug. 7.—Glen Cove's picturesque harbor was rendezvous this afternoon for the great fleet of schooners, sloops and steam yachts, including some of the speediest craft in American waters, that are to take part in the annual cruise of the New York Yacht Club. Commodore C. Ledyard Blair will order the squadron under way early tomorrow morning for the first run of the cruise from Glen Cove to Smithtown Bay, a distance of twenty seven miles. BURNS RETURNS TO RING; WILL FIGHT WITH PICKARD

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Saskatoon, Sask., Aug. 7.—Tommy Burns, who has not done any fighting since his defeat by Jack Johnson in Australia nearly four years ago, is to reappear in the ring here tomorrow night in a fifteen-round bout with Bill Pickard, who hails from Vancouver. The contest will be in the nature of a try-out for Burns, who declares that if he can regain his old form he will claim the championship title upon the retirement of Jack Johnson.

LEADERS IN LEAGUE TO PLAY NEW GAME

Parker Manager Enters Protest Against Y. M. C. A. Player And Another Game Will Decide Matter.

Discussion at the meeting of the board of managers of the Commercial league which met at the Y. M. C. A. building last evening, centered about the game between the Parker Pen and Y. M. C. A. on Saturday last which was protested by Carl Litts, manager for the Parker team.

The protest was made on the ground that Bond, who played third base for the Association nine was not a resident of the county. It was on account of Bond's sensational hitting that the Y. M. C. A. won the game, it was claimed. After considerable discussion it was decided to play the game over at some future date, possibly on Labor Day.

It was voted to extend the league season to Labor day and games will be scheduled at the Park association diamond on that day and arrangements have already been made for the use of the grounds in connection with the carpenters' celebration. The meeting of the managers next week will be open to all players in the league and a large attendance is expected. Matters of interest to all connected will be taken up.

Joe McGinnity.

Joe McGinnity continues to be the "Iron Man," although he is only in the International league now instead of the majors where he had a great record before today's stars ever saw a diamond. NOTED TRAINERS TO SEND THEIR HORSES

Dick MacMahon and Charley Dean Ship Horses to Janesville For Next Week Meet.

Secretary Putnam of the Park Association, has received orders for servation for stalls for horses from the Charley Dean and Dick MacMahon stables located at Libertyville, for the coming race meet to be held next week. Old timers state that the Park Association grounds are fast assuming the appearance of the old days when Janesville was the center of the harness racing game for southern Wisconsin. The tracks are in excellent condition, the grandstand has been repaired and other marked improvements have been made about the grounds. There is some talk among the merchants of making Friday the 16th, a half holiday, so that all their employes may attend the race meet.

IS GOOD SHORTSTOP AND HARD HITTER

Jack Barry.

Shortstop Jack Barry, of the Philadelphia Athletics, is maintaining the good reputation this season which he won in past years. He is one of the cleverest shortstops in the league and now has a batting average of .278. Barry first gained prominence and attracted the attention of major league scouts while he was playing on the Holy Cross college team. On his graduation in 1908 Connie Mack got him. Barry had played every infield position at Holy Cross, but Mack soon discovered that he was a natural shortstop and placed him there. Barry is a right-handed thrower and hitter.

GEERS' BIG FIGURE IN GRAND CIRCUIT RACES; SURPRISES ALL WITH "PEE WEE"

"Pop" Geers.

"Pop" Geers, the famous old driver whose name has been associated with horse racing as far back as the oldest inhabitant can remember, is one of the big figures in the Grand Circuit races this summer. He has already won laurels in Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids and Detroit. One of the surprises of the racing season was sprung at Detroit, where Geers landed first money in the $3,000 2:15 trot with the bay gelding Pee Wee. This nag was sold for a derelict at a price of $750 last year, and was not counted upon to win anything.

Seventy-Eight Pills a Day.

A case that was tried in London in 1817 gives some idea of the pill-taking proclivities of the time. An apothecary sued one Samuel Jessop for payment of a long-standing account. The bill extended to 55 closely-written columns, and showed that in 29 years he took 226,834 pills, beginning with the modest number of 29 a day, and advancing by easy stages to a daily consumption of 78. During the same period he consumed 49,000 bottles of mixtures, besides jalaps, elaterics, and other infallible specifics. The apothecary won the day, but Jessop died soon afterwards, at the age of 65, no doubt from stopping the physic.

OFFENSIVE FAKE PHOTOGRAPHS.
Regard for common decency and the rights of others has never deterred a certain class of people where a few dollars were to be gained. Some of the tricks resorted to by them are almost beyond belief. One of the most annoying and despicable is being practiced by a few fake photographers in Washington.

A visitor to the national capital, by visiting any one of these galleries, may have photographs made showing him shaking hands with the president or engaged in close conversation with any one of a score of eminent public men. The process will readily suggest itself to the great multitude that practices amateur photography.

At first glimpse it may appear that no great harm can come from this practice. But the case takes on a different aspect when it is known that dive-peepers, well known as such in their own cities, have obtained photographs of this kind and displayed them in their "places of business." There are many photographs in existence showing the president shaking hands with men upon whose faces the stamp of vice and bestiality is indelibly set. It is known that a man supposed to be engaged in the infamous "white slave" traffic has obtained such photographs and used them in the furtherance of his schemes.

The American people are perhaps something lacking in reverence, but they hold the office of president in deep respect. They resent anything which tends to detract from its dignity. Therefore the bill just introduced in congress by Senator Lodge prohibiting this kind of photographic faking will meet with their approval. The self-respect of the country demands that the practice shall be stopped.

A SMALL INVESTMENT.
In this day and age of investments of all kinds the statement that the discovery of America actually cost but $7,600 seems startling. There is not an industry, no matter how insignificant, that would not demand a much larger capitalization, and yet Columbus sailed from Europe and found this great continent that has brought untold wealth and riches, for which wars have been fought and on which a new world, a new nation, has been created for a paltry few thousand dollars. As far as can be learned there was no maturing of the stock of this expedition and there was no congressional investigation as to the results obtained. True, Columbus suffered indignities afterwards from his fellow countrymen and jealous rivals, but the fact remains he used the money invested in the project which brought back untold wealth to the stockholders.

THE INDUSTRIAL LAW.
Now the pea-cannery, an important industry in this state to both the financial interests and the growers, is in danger of serious loss by the workings of the present industrial law and the men at the head of the state commission enforcing this statute are apparently unable to aid the pea-cannery in the least. Here is one law, if all the rest of the socialistic doctrines enacted into laws by the last legislature are perfect, that should be remedied. It is theoretical and not practical and needs careful revision before it is possible to be of any practical value to the state as a whole.

IS IT ECONOMY?
Business men are discussing the possible "economy" on the part of the city administration, of employing a half dozen carpenters and laborers for several days in repairing the Milwaukee street bridge with the old worn-out planks instead of relaying the driveway with new planks at the same cost for labor. The present roadway, as re-laid, is about as rough as the "Rocky Road to Dublin." The question is whether it would not be more economical to have laid the planking entirely new, as must be done later in the summer, rather than employ labor to patch up a worn-out proposition.

ONE EXAMPLE.
One example of the proposed recall of the officials, as promulgated by the so-called Oregon law, that would have been most disastrous to this nation if it had been a law fifty years ago, is illustrated during the troublesome period of '61 and '65. Who can predict what would have happened if Lincoln had been recalled? During the dark days when disaster followed defeat of the Union arms, his cabinet members lukewarm or disloyal toward his fortunes, newspapers and magazines discrediting him, the people wavering and falling away, this great man stood alone.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

Why Buy One.
"I started out to buy a car this spring," said the tall man at the end of the bar.
"Yes," said the short man with the fuzzy fedora, "Why not? You can afford it all right."
"I can afford to buy one all right," said the tall man. "But I don't have to. My wife and I can get all of the riding and more than we want without putting up the $1,800. I have discovered a scheme whereby I can enjoy all of the benefits while the other fellow pays all the expenses. When I let it get noised around that I might buy a car there were upwards of 30 automobile agents at my office in less than no time and each one wanted to take my wife and myself out riding. I picked out one and he chased us around every day for two weeks. Then I let another one have his turn, then another, then another. We are riding all the time and every agent sticks to us about two weeks. I have got it figured out that there are enough agents in this town to last us until some time in October, and then the riding season will be over and I won't really have to buy a car until next year and even then perhaps there will be a new crop of agents in our midst. Why BUY a car?"
"Why, indeed?" repeated the short man. "Tomorrow morning, bright and early, I shall announce that I am about to buy a car. Thanks, old man."

Heart to Heart Talks.
By EDWIN A. NYE.

IN ONE YEAR.
This is a true story with a moral. He owned a fine little farm improved with a good house and barns and sheds, near a railroad station. There were cows and pigs and chickens a plenty. But he grew discontented.

He wanted to go to the city, where the wheels go round and where the bright lights shine. It was slow out there. The white clouds drifted through the blue sky and the days were long and the chores seemed never done.

And she? Secretly she longed to look into the big windows of the stores and go shopping like city folk and to the theater. And the children needed better advantages.

So he sold the little farm for less than it was worth and made a public sale of the stock and implements. They went to the city. He had nothing particular in view, but fancied his little capital would buy a small business that would afford them a living, the means for education of the children and entertainment.

The money dwindled rapidly. Rents were high, new clothes cost money and the cost of living was beyond all calculation. Hitherto their living expenses had not been considered as part of the farm's revenues.

Living "out of a basket" was different. After a good third of the purchase money was gone he fell into the toils of a broker, who sold him a small business that lasted but three months.

He had no experience in business, and it was certain he would fail. They moved into cheaper quarters and he began a weary search for a job. The family clothes grew shabby. He was discouraged and she was fretful. There was friction. In short—

"Poverty came in at the door and love flew out at the window." He finally found a job as driver of a delivery wagon and the wages barely provided food and shelter. The wife took in washing in order to clothe the children so they might stay in school.

All this in one year! The last time I saw him I was amazed. As a prosperous young farmer he was in robust health and looked the world squarely in the face. Now he had the meager look of one who is poorly fed and lives in a squalid tenement and the air of one who, hopeless, drags himself to his task. I did not see the wife.

AGAINST IMPROVING WASHINGTON STREET ACCORDING TO PLANS

Twenty-nine Owners of Property Abutting on Street File Petition of Protest—Object To Expense.

Twenty-nine owners of property abutting on Washington street and representatives of such owners yesterday afternoon filed with the Council a petition of protest against the repairing and macadamizing of the street according to the plans already prepared. Objection is made that the expense attendant upon such repairing and macadamizing far exceeds in many instances the value of the property which is to be taxed to pay for the same, and that in their judgment the repairs are not necessary or of the best kind. They are of the opinion that the street can be repaired at a very small portion of the cost which it is proposed to assess against the abutting property. The Council is asked to reconsider its action in the matter and provide for more inexpensive repairs. J. F. Carle, Norman Hield, Charles Sykes and Mr. Gardner addressed the Council in support of the petition which was accepted and placed on file.

A petition was also presented by nine owners of property on Milwaukee Avenue between Harrison street and Garfield avenue, asking this portion of the avenue be improved by paving with brick instead of with macadam as planned. Those whose signatures were affixed to the petition were George W. Yahn, Dr. M. A. Cunningham, Frank J. Kane, L. V. Paul, R. B. Harper, John L. Fisher, Mrs. M. W. Tennant, S. S. Hutchinson, and H. Cunningham. Mr. Yahn addressed the Council on the behalf of the petitioners, stating that was their opinion that a brick pavement would be the cheapest in the end.

Mrs. Helen J. Wray, 913 Milwaukee Avenue, filed a protest against the proposed laying of brick pavement on the portion of Milwaukee Avenue named, believing it to be an unnecessary expense to the property owners, objectionable on the score of noises, and therefore of irreparable injury to the value of her property. She asks that the Council proceed with the macadam as outlined.

Brick pavement was ordered laid by the Council on Fourth Avenue between the easterly end of the bridge to the easterly side of the North Main street. The Board of Public Works was directed to examine the premises and assess the benefits and damages to the property affected by the improvement. Superintendent of Streets C. E. Millmore was directed to repair the Alton road around the quarry and also Grand Avenue.

Monthly reports were received from the City Treasury, Chief of Police Appleby and the Board of Education, and ordered placed on file.

An invitation to the city to send a representative to the International Congress on Hygiene and Dermatology, to be held at Washington September 23 to 28 was accepted and filed. This is the first time the congress has ever met in the United States and it will be thirty years before it will meet here again.

Adjournment was taken until next Friday.

ROBERT J. COURTNEY HAS MORE TROUBLES

Wife Complains That he Has Made Threats to Take Her Life Denies Charge—Held For Examination.

Robert J. Courtney, whose complicated and unhappy domestic relations have given the police and the Municipal Court considerable trouble in the last few months is again involved in difficulties, and of an even more serious nature. This time it is with threatening to take the life of his wife. The complaint was made by Mrs. Courtney. Mr. Courtney denied the charge and the date of his examination was set for Friday morning.

He told the court that he did not care to have anything more to do with his wife, and that he was entirely willing to swear a bond to keep the peace if someone would consent to be his surety.

Mark Matthews entered a plea of "not guilty" to a charge of being found intoxicated. Matthews has also been having trouble at home; having gone there in violation of a former court order which directed him to keep away from there. His case was adjourned two days so as to give him time to leave the city in accordance with his expressed desire.

Joe Hatten paid a fine of $2 and costs, and Daniel Peterson $4 and costs, after pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication.

FATALLY INJURED WHILE AT WORK ON SEPARATOR.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Appleton, Wis., Aug. 7.—Will Golz, of Reedfield, aged 30, unmarried, was probably fatally injured about noon today when he was caught between the engine and his separator of his threshing outfit at Reedfield. He got up on the engine to start it, but pulled the wrong lever and the engine backed up pinning him between. A team of horses had to be harnessed to the separator to draw it away so as to release Golz. His chest, back and shoulders were badly crushed and it is feared he cannot live.

INDIVIDUAL INCOME TAX OF THE COUNTY ASSESSED $28,565

Assessment of Corporation Tax Has Not Been Completed By Tax Commission—Estimated Near $65,000.

Rock county income tax payers will contribute $28,565.12, which is the total amount assessed the individual income according to Income Tax Commissioner F. A. Taylor. Mr. Taylor was authorized to make public the amount of the tax after a consultation with the members of the state tax commission at Madison yesterday. The total amount of incomes in Rock county against which the tax has been assessed is not known as yet and it will take some time to set the books in shape so that the figures can be given.

The corporation tax will be paid by Rock county companies and which is assessed directly by the state tax commission, has not yet been ascertained. However, members of the commission told Mr. Taylor yesterday that the amount would probably be between $60,000 and $70,000. This would bring the total tax against incomes from corporations and individuals in this county to about $100,000. Of this amount but ten per cent goes to the state; twenty per cent is turned into the county treasury; and the other seventy per cent of the amount collected remains in the town, city or village treasury where the tax was assessed.

BURGLARS BREAK INTO DOTY MACHINE WORKS

Open Three Machinists' Chests and Carry Away Tools Worth From $60 to $75—No Clue.

Burglars forced an entrance into the Doty Machine Works some time last night, opened three large machinists' chests, and carried away with them tools worth from $60 to $75. The thieves were evidently acquainted with tools for they picked out the most valuable ones they could find and left the rest. The thefts were discovered as soon as the shops were opened for work this morning. The police were at once informed and Chief of Police George Appleby and Patrolman Patrick Panning made an investigation. They were not able to discover definitely how the burglars had entered and made their departure as all windows and doors were found closed. It is thought, however, that they got in and out by opening a window.

The tools which were stolen were an assorted lot, and were marked with the names of O. Knisp, F. Hein and A. O. Roese. The police think the theft is the work of tramps, or else of transient mechanics who wanted to replenish their tool chests. Chief of Police Appleby telephoned the police of Madison, Beloit, Rockford, Watertown, and Ft. Atkinson, giving them as accurate a description of the tools as was possible and requesting them to visit places where such tools might be offered for sale. The burglars also carried with them some of the drawers in which the tools were stored.

No night watch is kept at the Doty Machine Company's factory and it is beyond the patrols of the police force and afforded very little protection.

KNOCKED OVER BY TRAIN AT CLINTON LAST NIGHT.

James Gane of Philadelphia, Suffered Injuries and is Recuperating at Mercy Hospital.

James Gane of Philadelphia, Pa., is recuperating at Mercy hospital today from contusions and bruises suffered at Clinton last night when he was knocked over by a switching train.

Gane arrived at Clinton from Chicago about 7:30 last evening and on alighting at the Northwestern station proceeded to cross the tracks in the rear of the caboose of a way freight on a siding. The train suddenly backed up knocking him over. He was caught by projecting rods from the third car and dragged for some distance to a switch frog badly bruising and wrenching his hip. Dr. A. S. Parker could discover no broken bones and the man was sent on to the Janesville hospital on the 8:30 train. He was resting easier this afternoon.

Lay Brick In Alley: Gund & Graham's workmen have begun laying brick in the Y. M. C. A. alley. ODD FELLOWS' PICNIC ARRANGEMENTS MADE Program Ready for First Joint Outing Of Lodges in Association No. 36—At Lake Koshkonong August 14.

All arrangements for the first joint picnic and meeting of the Odd Fellows Lodges in Association No. 36 to be held at Fun Hunters' Point, Lake Koshkonong, on Wednesday, August 14, have been completed. The programs have been printed and mailed out to the officers of the various lodges. The Chicago, Milwaukee, & St. Paul Railway has consented to stop the morning train leaving at 7:45 o'clock at the school-house landing, which is only three-quarters of a mile from the picnic grounds, and the train which returns to this city at 8 o'clock in the evening will also stop there. There are eight lodges in the association and all are expected to send good sized delegations. All Odd Fellows, Rebekahs, and their families are invited.

The program will begin with a roll call of the lodges. C. W. Crumb of Milton, Grand Master, will give the address of welcome, and the response will be delivered by J. E. Carle. Following will come the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, reports of lodges and committees, unfinished business, informal discussion and a social session. Short talks will be given by members of each lodge on "Why I am an Odd Fellow." All members are expected to bring well laden baskets of picnic lunch.

The lodges in the association are Myrtle Lodge No. 10 of Beloit, Wisconsin No. 14 of Janesville, Halcyon No. 15 of Whitewater, Waukegan No. 76 of Orfordville, Janesville Lodge No. 90, Leota Lodge No. 16 of Evansville, Edgerton Lodge No. 133, and Du Lac Lodge 322 of Milton.

CHICAGO CHILDREN HERE FOR OUTING

Twenty Children, Accompanied by Three Adults, Arrived Here This Morning in Charge of Miss King.

Twenty of the Fresh Air children from the tenement districts of Chicago, who are given an outing at homes in and near Janesville by the Summer Club of Household Economics each year, arrived here this morning from Chicago over the St. Paul railroad at 10:40 in charge of Miss Eleanor King of this city, who went to the city yesterday to bring them here. The party was met at the depot by the ladies who volunteered to take charge of the children and entertain them during the coming two weeks. Most of the number have been here before and many of them were so anxious to come to Janesville this summer that they registered their desires with the United Charities of Chicago, in February. Four of them have been here for two years previous, two of the boys stopping with Mrs. Waterman, living near the Institute for the Blind, and the other two lads have been entertained by Mrs. T. M. Gunn, residing in the town of Rock. Nine of the children are being entertained by Janesville ladies, four girls at the home of Mrs. Norman Hield, Washington street; four girls at the home of Mrs. H. A. Palmer, Logan avenue, and one boy at the home of Mrs. B. T. Fish, a brother of John Ferguson.

Mrs. B. W. Fisher of the town of Center is entertaining one of the youths; Mrs. Ray Boynton, Avalon, has another, and four are being entertained at Hanover. Besides the children, transportation was given by the United Charities of Chicago for Mrs. Hanson, who has a son working on a farm near this city, and for a man and his wife, the man being a cripple.

Sapphire is a Doublet. The sapphire, like the ruby, being of the corundum group, it was for a long time supposed that the blue stone could be made in the laboratory as readily as the red. It has turned out, however, that the reconstructed sapphire is a doublet—that is to say, it is composed of two pieces of quartz, with blue coloring on the plane at the point where the cementing occurs.

WILSON RECEIVES NOTIFICATION TODAY OF HIS NOMINATION

can you, bring the whole people into the partnership or not?

"We do not ignore the fact that the business of a country like ours is exceedingly sensitive to changes in legislation of this kind. It has been built up, however, illadvisedly, upon tariff schedules written in the way I have indicated, and its foundations must not be too radically or too suddenly disturbed. When we act we should act with caution and prudence, like men who know what they are about, and not like those in love with a theory. It is obvious that the changes we make should be made only at such a rate and in such a way as will interfere with the normal and healthful course of commerce and manufacture. But we shall not on that account act with timidity, as if we did not know our own minds, for we are certain of our ground and of our object. There should be an immediate revision and it should be downward unhesitatingly and steadily downward.

"The so-called labor question is a question only because we have not yet found the rule of right in adjusting the interests of labor and capital. Here, again, the sense of universal partnership must come into play if we are to act like statesmen, as those who serve, not a class, but nation.

"The working people of America—if they must be distinguished from the minority that constitutes the rest of it—are, of course, the backbone of the nation. No law that safeguards their life, that improves the physical and moral conditions under which they live, that makes their hours of labor rational and tolerable, that gives them freedom to act in their own interests, and that protects them where they cannot protect themselves, can properly be regarded as class legislation or as anything but as a measure taken in the interest of the whole people, whose partnership in right action we are trying to establish and make real and practical. It is in this spirit that we shall act if we are genuine spokesmen of the whole country.

"In dealing with the complicated and difficult question of the reform of our banking and currency laws, it is plain that we ought to consult very many persons besides the bankers, but because they do not necessarily comprehend the business of the country, notwithstanding they are indispensable servants of it and may do a vast deal to make it hard or easy. No mere banker's plan will meet the requirements, no matter how honestly conceived. It should be a merchants' and farmers' plan as well, elastic in the hands of those who use it as an indispensable part of their daily business.

"In dealing with the Philippines, we should not allow ourselves to stand upon any mere point of pride. We are not the owners of the Philippine islands. We hold them in trust for the people who live in them. They are theirs for the uses of their life. We are not even their partners. It is our duty, as trustees, to make whatever arrangement of government will be most serviceable to their freedom and development. Here, again, we are to set up the rule of justice and of right.

"I do not know of any greater question than that of conservation. We have been a spendthrift nation and must now husband what we have left. We must do more than that. We must develop, as well as preserve, our water powers and must add great waterways to the transportation facilities of the nation, to supplement the railways within our borders as well as upon the isthmus. We must revive our merchant marine, too, and fill the seas again with our own fleets. We must add to our present postoffice service, a parcels post as complete as that of any other nation. We must look to the health of our people upon every hand, as well as hearten them with justice and opportunity. This is the constructive work of government. This is the policy that has a vision and a hope and that looks to serve mankind.

"With regard to the development of greater and more numerous waterways and the building up of a merchant marine, we must follow great constructive lines and not fall back upon the cheap device of bounties and subsidies. In the case of the Mississippi river, that great central artery of our trade, it is plain that the federal government must build and maintain levees and keep the great waters in harness for the general use.

"The very fact that we have at last taken the Panama Canal seriously in hand and are vigorously pushing it towards completion is eloquent of our re-awakened interest in international trade. We are not building the canal and pouring out millions upon millions of money upon its construction merely to establish a water connection between the two coasts of the continent, important and desirable as that may be, particularly from the point of view of naval defense. It is meant to be a great international highway. It would be a little ridiculous if we should build it and then have no ships to send through it.

"There is another duty which the Democratic party has shown itself great enough and close enough to the people to perceive. The duty of government to share in promoting agricultural, industrial, vocational education in every way possible within its constitutional powers. No other platform has given this intimate vision of a party's duty. The nation cannot enjoy its deserved supremacy in the markets and enterprises of the world unless its people are given the ease and effectiveness that come only with knowledge and training. Education is part of the great task of conservation, part of the task of renewal and of perfected power.

"A presidential campaign may easily degenerate into a mere personal contest and so lose its real dignity and significance. There is no indispensable man. The government will not collapse and go to pieces if any one of the gentlemen who are seeking to be entrusted with its guidance should be left at home. But men are instruments. We are important as the cause we represent, and in order to be important must really represent a cause. What is our cause? The People's cause! That is easy to say, but what does it mean? The common as against any particular interest whatever? Yes, but that, too, needs translation into acts and policies. We represent the desire to set up an unentangled government, a government that cannot be used for private purposes, either in the field of business or in the field of politics; a government that will not tolerate the use of the organization of a great party to serve the personal aims and ambitions of any individual, and that will not permit legislation to be employed to further any private interest. I heed with deep thankfulness the message you bring me from the country. I feel that I am surrounded by men whose principles and ambitions are those of true servants of the people. I thank God, and will take courage."

VESSEY BIG GUN AT T. R. CONVENTION

Gov. R. S. Vessey.

Gov. R. S. Vessey, of South Dakota, is one of the big guns at the Bull Moose convention in Chicago. He represents his state on the first national committee of the third party. Gov. Vessey declares that the National Progressives will take over the Republican machinery entire in South Dakota.

Life Length of Things.

It has just been computed that the day fly lives 24 hours; the May fly six weeks; the butterfly two months; as alas, also does the flea; the fly three to four months; the ant, the cricket, and the bee one year each; the hare, sheep, six to ten years each; the nightingale, 12 years; the wolf, 12 to 15 years; the canary bird, 16 to 20 years; the dog, 15 to 25 years; cattle, 25 years; the horse, 25 to 30 years; the eagle, 30 years; the stag, 35 to 40 years; heron, lion, and bear, 50 years each; the raven, 80 years; elephant, turtle, parrot, pike, and carp, 100 years each. The ivy outlives 200 years; the elm, 300 to 350 years; the linden, 500 to 1,000 years; the locust tree and the oak, 400 years; the fir, 700 to 1,200 years; the palm trees, 3,000 to 5,000 years.

The Ink Bag Squid.

When the squid is alarmed the ink bag that connects with the siphon opens its valve and a cloud of the black fluid is ejected into the water, where it becomes quickly diffused, forming an effectual bar to pursuit. The squids also have a faculty of changing their color with great rapidity, and when laboring under great excitement, waves of color seem to pass over them in quick succession. Their motions are extremely rapid; darting along with the velocity of light, now rushing into a school of small fry tail first, turning quickly to seize a victim and press it against the birdlike beak where, by making triangular nips, the vertebrae is generally instantly severed. It is interesting to note that the bite is always in the same place—the neck.—Charles Frederick Holder.

Exports Will Be Large.

The estimate that a billion dollars' worth of manufactures will be exported in the current fiscal year, made by the bureau of statistics, department of commerce and labor, seems likely to be justified. The official figures show for the nine months ending with March $730,000,000 worth of manufactures exported, these figures being $74,000,000 in excess of those for the corresponding period of the preceding year; and as the exports of manufactures in the year ending June 30, 1911, were valued at $907,000,000, the figures at hand seem to clearly indicate that the total for the current year will pass the billion-dollar line.

A Golf Winner.

Modest Moggs was returning to the clubhouse when Wilson met him. "Well, how did you get on today?" queried Wilson. "I never saw better golf," said Moggs. "My opponent got away every drive, he hit every brassy clean, he approached up to the hole perfectly, and he never missed a putt." "How much were you beaten by?" "Beaten! I wasn't beaten. I won!"

BULL MOOSE CHIEF RULES CONVENTION; HASTEN NOMINATION

In nomination for the presidency at the progressive party convention by W. A. Prendergast of New York. Prendergast concluded his nominating speech at 2:22 amid a great outburst of cheering and a demonstration was immediately begun.

Chairman Beveridge announced that the convention would listen to a speech by William H. Hotchkiss, named to the nominations without waiting for the platform. Chairman Beveridge ruled this out of order as the rules of the convention provided for the adoption of the platform.

PARDEE IS A MOOSE FROM CALIFORNIA

Ex-Governor Pardee.

Ex-Governor Pardee, of California, who was a member of the delegation from his state to the Republican national convention at Chicago, has joined forces with the third party, and is now on deck in the Windy City to help nominate the man whom the Republicans turned down in June.

Pardee is a committee man from New York, and would take a recess to wait the platform. Meanwhile the vote on the rules was put over until after the recess.

Mr. Hotchkiss was cheered as he ced to the nominations without waiting for the platform. Chairman Beveridge ruled this out of order as the rules of the convention provided for the adoption of the platform.

Allen then moved to suspend the rules and proceed to nomination. By a second of two-thirds vote of the Kansas delegation the motion was recognized and two more states seconded it. Timothy Woodruff made a brief speech opposing Allen's motion. William Flinn of Pennsylvania said that to recess at this time would delay matters. Former Governor Fort of New Jersey moved as an amendment that the convention recess until 1:00 o'clock. After some discussion this was adopted at 12:26 and the convention went into recess until one o'clock.

Many of the delegates and spectators remained in their seats during the recess. When one o'clock arrived, however, there were many vacant seats on the floor. Henry J. Allen of Kansas announcing that the platform would not be ready for an hour and a half, renewed the motion to suspend the rules and proceed to nomination. This time the motion went through without serious objection. "The clerk will call the roll of states for nominations for president of the United reviewed the work of the organization of the progressive party in New York. "The people of New York, boss-ridden and fettered by Barnes and Murphy," he said, "are today as free as California and as progressive as Kansas."

He asserted that the progressive

States," announced Chairman Beveridge.

J. O. Thompson arose. "Alabama yields to New York," he announced, but here the proceedings were interrupted as William J. Prendergast of New York, scheduled to nominate, party would poll 25 to 30 per cent of the Tammany vote in New York. He concluded with a prediction of certain victory in November.

A motion to recess until 1:15 evoked the first note of opposition to the plans of the leaders. A chorus of "Moo" greeted the motion to recess. Henry J. Allen of Kansas moved as a substitute that the convention proceeded to the nominations without waiting for the platform. Searchers hurried out to find him and the band filled in the wait. Chairman Beveridge called the hall when Prendergast appeared. A round of cheers greeted him as he was introduced, and the "bull moose" call sounded through the hall. A hush of silence followed and Prendergast began his speech.

FAMILY OF DR. SUN YAT SEN, CHINA'S FIRST PRESIDENT, VERY AMBITIOUS; ALL COME TO AMERICA TO GET EDUCATION.

Sun Fo, who is twenty-one years old, and Mrs. Sun Fo, two years her junior, will both become students at Berkeley. The two younger children, Miss Sun Yuen, seventeen years old, and Miss Sun On, aged fifteen, will enter a preparatory school to fit them for a university education later on. All of the party, including the young bride, are American born, natives of Honolulu.

Mrs. W. H. Felton.

Mrs. W. H. Felton, of Carletonville, Pa., is one of the women delegates to the Bull Moose convention. She is an author and speaker of note. Mrs. Helen D. Longstreet, widow of the late general, is her alternate.

International Building Exhibition. Plans have been completed for the International Building exhibition to be held at Leipzig from May to October, 1913. It is expected to demonstrate the surprising progress which the art of building has made in the last 20 or 30 years. The official participation of foreign governments and the great influx of foreign visitors anticipated, especially of state and municipal officers and experts, will afford exhibitors superior opportunities for making valuable connections.

After Them.

Excited Citizen—"Do you know that the Grabbal bank has closed and not an official can be found? Do you know we suspect they have run?" Police Officer—"Yes, we know all about it." "Oh, you do, eh? Well, what have you done?" "Oh, we've after 'em but an' heavy. We've already caught the janitor."

HAVE YOUR SPINE ADJUSTED REGULARLY AND KEEP WELL

THE AVERAGE MAN WHO IS COMARATIVELY WELL SHOULD TAKE SPINAL ADJUSTMENTS OFTEN.

The average professional man, business man or laborer should have each person in his family, including himself, go TWICE A YEAR, to a regular, specific pure and unadulterated Chiropractor who understands these persons and have their spines looked over, and any subluxations (as shown in the cut at point marked Number 3), occurring during that time can be easily and quickly corrected and save many hours of slight miseries or keen pains for the future. It is the cheapest investment that a man can put into his family or home. The engineer pays the strictest attention to his engine and knows that every bolt must be just right and every pin in its place, in fact, the machine must be JUST RIGHT ALL THE TIME. Why not man? You should go to the Chiropractor more often than you do to the dentist. It pays. The Chiropractor has regular families that adopt this twice a year plan and they are the healthiest families in the surrounding country. I am their "family Chiropractor." Special visits will be made to any point in Rock County.

ENTHUSIASM OF BANDANNA DELEGATES MAKES THEIR CONVENTION DIFFERENT FROM THOSE OF OLD PARTIES.

By Virgil V. McNitt.

Chicago.—The Democratic convention no more closely resembled the Republican convention than day resembles night, and the Progressive convention is not a bit like either. The first thing noticeable when the convention opened was the lack of the spirit contest. There was only one thing to do, and there wasn't the shadow of a possibility of any opposition to the program. It was quite apparent that the atmosphere was not to crackle with electricity generated from friction and the stock of fierce verbal encounter.

If we can forget for the moment the presence of many everyday politicians who have invited themselves in to the movement for motives fairly easy to divine, we might say that the gathering has a spirit of almost religious fervor and enthusiasm.

Women Honestly Welcomed. It was to be expected that some politicians of the has-been variety, and pronouncements for equal suffrage, a woman's minimum wage scale, regulation of child labor and the conditions and hours of employment of some minor bosses temporarily out of the bossing business, would make a heap for the band-wagon, and with them the leaders must contend if they wish to make good in their declarations.

Perhaps the most significant feature of the convention is the fact that woman has at last gained her innings, and is being given the recognition for which she has long contended. The practical politicians put their tongues in their cheeks over the matter of admitting the woman to conventional councils; also they wink the other eye. Without doubt, however, the women are honestly welcomed by the leaders of the type of Johnson, Beveridge, Lindsey, and Garfield.

It is certainly a novel sight to observe women social workers like Jane Adams sitting side by side with men in a national convention.

The Progressive party seems frankly to desire the aid of the women. Its women and children, all are in accord with what suffragists and social workers have long asked.

The average delegate is of the type that supported Roosevelt at the Republican convention. In many cases the same men are back again under the rebel banner, with bandannas around their necks. The average delegate is an enthusiastic individual, equally ready to yell himself hoarse or to join fervently in a hymn.

This movement, if it gathers any momentum at all, will bring sorrow to those whose feeling for the Republican party amounts to devotion. It isn't a light matter to tear up a party that has been so successful and so powerful, but your average Progressive doesn't care a rap for that. His face is set in a new direction, and he seems to have no inclination to turn back.

DINNER STORIES

A San Francisco mother-in-law went to the Orient and, coming back, was caught trying to smuggle in a lot of choice silks.

She had to pay duty and a fine. Then there was talk of a criminal action to follow.

Her son-in-law called on the customs officials. "Is it possible," he asked, in a severe tone, "after my mother-in-law has paid the duty on the stuff and her fine that you contemplate criminal action?"

"We are considering it," the customs official replied, gravely.

"And if my mother-in-law were to be convicted, as she probably would be, she would have to go to jail?"

"I think so."

"Do you mean to tell me you intend to do this to a woman—a lady who has already expiated her fault and recompensed the government?"

"I do, but look here, old chap, don't take this too hard. I've got to do my duty, you know. Don't feel so badly about it."

"Badly!" shouted the son-in-law.

"Why, my dear sir, this is the first gleam of sunshine that has entered my home in 20 years!"

One day a pastor was calling upon a dear old lady, one of the "pillars" of the church to which they both belonged. As he thought of her long and useful life and looked upon her sweet, placid countenance, bearing but few tokens of her ninety-two years of earthly pilgrimage, he was moved to ask her, "My dear Mrs. S—, what has been the chief source of your strength and sustenance during all these years. What has appealed to you as the real basis of your unusual vigor of mind and body, and has been to you an unflinching comfort through joy and sorrow? Tell me, that I may pass the secret on to others, and if possible, profit by it myself."

The old lady thought a moment, then, lifting her eyes, dim with age, yet kindling with sweet memories of the past, answered briefly, "Victuals."

A year or two ago a Vermont town employed a trained superintendent who knew what a school ought to be to exercise supervision over all the schools in that town. This superintendent found that in the majority of the schools only a few pupils had books until the short term was half over. The school committeemen ordered the books and supplies, and he waited to see if some more scholars wouldn't "turn up," and even then was dilatory in sending in his order. In one school a little toddler, was found studying percentage, learning it by heart. "You should not teach him percentage," the superintendent said, "he does not know how to add and subtract." "But I've got to," the teacher answered, "the front part of the arithmetic is torn out."

They were mother and daughter traveling on the briny ocean. It was their first trip abroad and the sea was very rough.

Suddenly the daughter exclaimed: "Oh mamma, its coming on again worse than ever!"

"But why, May," asked her mother, "did you not follow out the directions about which your father told you before you came on board?"

"Because," answered the daughter in a faint voice, "I've forgotten whether I ought to breathe in as the vessel rises and let the breath go out as it moves downward, or whether it ought to be the other way. And, oh—oh—oh—I wish I were dead!"

Next door to the crusty old tinker there lived a bricklayer, and the tinker's neighbor carried, in the shape of a blackened eye, evidence of an attack upon him by the tinker.

The parson got to hear of the altercation that was at the root of the trouble, and meeting the tinker one day, determined tactfully to mention the matter.

"My man," he said, "you should love your neighbor as yourself."

"Yes, sir," replied the tinker mildly.

Somehow the parson could not help thinking of that blackened eye.

"But do you honestly do so?" he asked. "Do you really love your neighbor as yourself?"

"Yes, sir, indeed," replied the tinker, "but I'm a very modest man, you see, and to tell the truth, I ain't particularly stuck on myself, you see."

WOODROW WILSON AND McCOMBS DO MOST OF THE PLANNING FOR DEMS.' CAMPAIGN

Woodrow Wilson and Wm. F. McCombs.

TURNS DOWN GOOD JOB IN ORDER THAT SHE MAY PRACTICE LAW IN WASHINGTON

Lucy Louise Sandberg.

Although she has been offered a splendid position as juvenile court attorney for the Council of Jewish Women of Boston, Miss Lucy Louise Sandberg, a young woman lawyer of Washington, has declined it, preferring to practice her profession in Washington. She is well known in Boston, where she practiced law for two years, but as she is actively engaged in the fight for votes for women, Miss Sandberg believes that she will advance better in her profession as well as be in a position to help suffrage by remaining at the national capital.

Surgeon General Rupert Blue.

The recent threatened invasion of this country by bubonic plague again brings into public notice Surgeon General Rupert Blue of the U. S. marine hospital service. Dr. Blue has been conducting the campaign against it.

Dr. Blue will be remembered as the man who stopped the bubonic plague in San Francisco a few years ago. He discovered the fact that rats and ground squirrels were responsible for the spread of the plague and originated a plan by which these animals were almost exterminated in the city.

THE TRIALS OF A TRAVELER.

"I am a traveling salesman," writes E. E. For all stomach, liver or kidney troubles they are unequalled. Only 25 cents at Peoples' Drug Co.

To the Stockholders of the Clinton Telephone Company:

Don't let anyone fool you into selling your company to the Bell Telephone Co., thereby saddling yourselves and patrons with an increase in rates. YOU HAVE A GOOD INVESTMENT, so why let it go? Don't get it into your heads that none but those who are advocating a sale are competent to manage your company. Under proper management the Bergen controversy never would have occurred and you would still have those people as subscribers. It is very bad policy for the management of a telephone company to quarrel with the subscribers.

Come--Tell Your Friends

We want all persons interested in Janesville telephone service to come to Putnam's Store and see and use the Automatic Telephone System on exhibition there. The automatic is the most efficient and most modern telephone apparatus made, and is a mechanical marvel.

We have procured from the manufacturers an automatic switchboard and telephones for examination and trial by our subscribers and others.

In the near future we expect to put up a handsome, modern Exchange Building and install a new switchboard and telephones, for the purpose of making our service the best in Janesville. Our past success and strength is due to the fact that we have set the pace in improving the service and reducing rates.

We know the automatic is the best the market affords. We want the telephone users of Janesville to see and understand its operation and if it is desired by them we want to install that kind of equipment.

Since Monday evening many people have inspected and tried the automatic equipment and they have without exception expressed pleasure and satisfaction with its operation.

The automatic is entirely different from any telephone service now or ever before in Janesville. There is as much difference between the automatic and the systems now in use here as there is between a horse and buggy and an automobile. The operation is electrical and mechanical and is controlled at the telephone by the users thereby eliminating the central office operators.

The automatic is more accurate than manual because it is designed on correct mechanical principles and because the user has a personal interest in seeing that the calls he makes are made correctly.

The automatic is quicker than manual because its operation is effected directly by electricity—the twin brother of lightning.

The automatic is easier to use than manual because the user can make his calls in his own way. He can call rapidly or slowly, as it pleases him. When he has called, he knows the bell at the other end is ringing; or, if the line is in use (and then only) he gets a prompt and truthful "busy" signal. He may test his own line to learn whether or not it is in proper calling order. When through calling the disconnection is instantaneous. Successive connections in rapid order are easy. There is no need to ring again and wait for the operator to come back on the line.

In fact, there is complete freedom from all the annoyances, large and small, that seem to be unavoidable between telephone operators and the public.

The automatic is used in cities throughout the world and is very popular.

We have the use of this automatic exhibit for only a limited time and we want each telephone user, present or prospective, in Janesville, to see it. We have plenty of attendants, who will be pleased to explain it thoroughly. It is simple to understand and the demonstration takes but little time.

No matter how busy, it is worth anyone's time to see this wonderful apparatus.

John Objects to the Simple Life

Did you notice," asked Dolly, at the dinner table, "that a bride in Boston says lemon water is enough for breakfast?"

John looked apprehensive. "Some fool crank," he said.

"No indeed," replied Dolly warmly. "She's some famous woman. She did something or other. And she's marrying somebody prominent—son of—Lawson or Morgan or somebody."

"Catch those fellows eating lemon water," sniffed John. "Tell that to the marines."

"She's perfectly sincere, though," went on Dolly. "And she and her husband are going to do it."

"About twice," said John. "Then they'll sour on it."

"And she says," continued Dolly, "that bread and cheese and fruit are enough for lunch, and eggs and some steamed vegetable for dinner."

John laid down his knife and fork. "Don't you try any of that dope around here," he said.

Dolly laughed. "If you'd try a diet like that, may be you wouldn't have the rheumatism."

"I'd rather have the rheumatism. I'd as lief have that as starve."

"Oh, you wouldn't starve. She says everybody eats too much."

"May be that's so," said John. "But even if I eat less, I want something to eat that's worth eating. Lemon water! The ideal! Give me another cup of coffee."

"Now you are taking drugs into your system," said Dolly, as she passed him the coffee.

"All right," replied John cheerfully. "I guess the system will stand for it. It has stood for worse."

"She says," went on Dolly, "that no animal would eat the salted, sugared, peppered, spiced, minced and greasy messes we do."

"She sure uses some language, don't she?" interrupted John. "I'd like to see the two of them a year from now. They'll be applying for positions as living skeletons, or they'll be hiking for a beanery and ordering beefsteak, potatoes, griddle cakes, maple sugar, mince pie and coffee. Believe me, those theories sound well, but they don't work out. She's trying to make him believe it's all done for the sake of his precious health, when the real reason is she don't want to cook and wash dishes. I'm on, dear. Don't you try any such game on me."

"Never fear," said Dolly. "I don't want any small-sized cyclone cavorting through the house. Your breakfast tomorrow will be cantaloupe ice cold, oat meal, lamb chops, fried potatoes, hot rolls and coffee. Is there anything else you would like?"

"You might have a little dish of fried tomatoes on the side," said John. "They're tasty on a hot morning."

"All right," replied Dolly.

"But if you prefer lemon water," said John, "why have it. I've no objections."

"I guess I'll eat what you do," rejoined Dolly.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

HIGH THINKING AND LOW LIVING.

High ideals are beautiful and wonderful things. It is always an inspiration to me to meet anyone who has some aspiration and some sense of responsibility in life beyond surrounding himself and his own with all the comforts and pleasures and friends possible, and living pleasantly from day to day.

But conversely, it is always a saddening disillusionment to find my idealist notably failing to live up to the little obligations of daily living.

And yet how often one finds this sad combination—grand thinking and petty living, stern ideals and slack realities! For instance, a young woman crossed my path this summer whose beautiful ideals about the brotherhood of man and our responsibility towards our less fortunate fellow creatures were a stimulant to me. And then one day I heard the woman with whom she boarded telling how much trouble and extra work this particular girl had caused by being consistently and unnecessarily late to meals. The hostess is a very hardworking little widow who is evidently overtaxing her strength, and most of her guests—even though they do not have ideals as to the brotherhood of man—do all they can to make it easier for her. Naturally, after that, my young friend's ideals failed to inspire me.

Again, the most impassioned champion of justice and equal rights for all whom I ever knew was a young man who lived in a boarding house and was disliked by all his mates because he would keep possession of the bathroom at the rush hours just about twice as long as the law of justice and equal rights for all allowed.

Just the other day my shampoo lady came an hour early, inquiring anxiously if I could have my treatment then, and explaining that it would be a great favor if I could, for Mrs. S., whom she usually treated at that hour, had gone to town and left word that she would postpone her appointment until that afternoon. That had thrown out her entire schedule, and unless I could accommodate her, she said she didn't know what she would do. Now Mrs. S. is a woman of unusually high ideals of justice. Wasn't it strange that it didn't occur to her to put them into practice in the relations of daily life?

Of course, we all know many very well intentioned people who cause infinite inconvenience and unhappiness by slackness in paying their debts. "To talk of living the higher life and to ignore the financial integrity of keeping one's debts promptly and accurately paid," someone has said, "is to speak a meaningless jargon."

Now there are many kinds of consistency which are absolute folly. As, for instance, that which makes a man cling to a position after he has come to realize it is a mistake. But the consistency which makes a man try to live in little things as he talks in big ones, surely is a jewel.

And they who lack this consistency certainly are talking a "meaningless jargon" when they try to tell us about their ideals.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Harrietta D. Gravel

One of Cleveland's greatest blessings is its municipal fish market, where our splendid lake fish are sold for a few pennies a pound, just fresh from the water, with their true flavor unimpaired by cold storage.

New Yorkers can buy salmon and shad and other goliaths of the sea at one-third the price we pay for them, but on the principle that far fields look green, they use our lake fish, cheerfully paying from forty to sixty cents a pound, and send us their fish, which we unquestionably purchase just as willingly.

Salmon is the most delicious of all our fish, though it deteriorates after it has left the water twelve hours. They are a fresh and salt water fish, coming into the inland rivers to spawn when the streams are swollen with spring rains. Probably they are attracted by the cooler water of the rivers.

They journey up the Columbia and are found in Montana and following the Snake river and its tributaries, they penetrate British Columbia, going up stream as long as water can be found deep enough in which to swim.

About two million salmon are taken annually in our rivers and the supply does not seem to diminish. Those used for food weigh from ten to thirty pounds and are packed in canneries just at the river's edge. The fish are cleaned and washed and cut in strips just as wide as the depths of the cans, one strip from the back of the fish, then a strip from the under side until the can is full. It is then processed in the most careful manner and the reputation which American canned salmon enjoys all over the world is due to the precautions which are taken to have every can airtight, carefully filled and cooked thoroughly.

The chinook or spring salmon is used for canning, as late in the summer the river fish is not in good condition. The beautiful salmon on sale in Cleveland markets are taken by hook in salt water, and are no mean game to grapple with even for a fisherman traveling on his muscle. Rushing furiously up stream with a plank of a hook grasped in its vise-like jaw, like the bit between the teeth of a runaway horse, a thirty-pound salmon is not the easiest thing to land.

Salmon fishing is the poetry of angling, and when the fish are glorified by an accomplished cook on land they become the pride of the table.

Small salmon may be baked with stuffing or spread with butter and broiled over a clear fire or tied in a protecting cloth and broiled delicately, but a planked salmon is a salmon perfected.

All planked fish are cooked in much the same manner. Split them down the under side; lay skin down up on a well buttered plank. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and brush with butter. Cook twenty minutes or longer according to the size of the fish, basting often with a mixture of butter, hot water and lemon juice. Garnish with parsley and squares of lemon and send to the table on the plank.

Gas ranges are splendidly adapted to planking fish, having the flame above the fish and permitting the heat to be lowered as the fish cooks.

For planking salmon steaks, such as are now selling on Sherwin street market, skewer the steaks together and lay thin strips of flake flavored bacon across them to prevent the heat of the fire from drying out the rich juices. Garnish with mashed on duchess potatoes and return to the oven until they are well browned. Then finish garnishing with parsley and lemon.

The Kitchen Cabinet

EVEN a good wick, almost any kind of oil will burn, given to the drippings from the pan. Given a good, determined will, anybody can keep up a steady flame of useful effort. The difference in human beings is not so much what is in them as in what they get out of themselves.

HOT WEATHER HINTS.

The secret of keeping cool in hot weather is not all individuality. Proper food, sufficient exercise, sleep and daily bathing, the avoidance of stimulants and a cheerful mind will insure one against undue suffering in hot weather.

Succulent fruits and vegetables, salads and cooling fruit drinks are all so refreshing during hot weather. The body, if given as little foods as possible, will have less waste to dispose of and there will be greater comfort.

Lemonade is one of the best and most cooling drinks; it thins the blood and has a tonic effect upon the whole system.

During the heated term is the time for the house mother to take a rest from cooking. Let sandwiches, salads and fruit with frozen desserts be common and much labor will be dispensed with and a corresponding increase in comfort.

Ginger Punch.—Chop the ginger from a pint jar of Canton ginger, add a cup of sugar, a quart of water and boil twenty minutes; add three-fourths of a cup of orange juice, a half cup of lemon juice and three tablespoonfuls of the syrup from the jar. Put into the punch bowl with a quantity of cracked ice and add a pint of apollinaris water from time to time to give it sparkle. This amount of punch will serve forty people.

Musk melons chilled and cut in halves, the seeds removed and then filled with ice cream makes a delicious hot weather dessert. Garnish with roasted almonds or pieces of ginger to stimulate seeds.

Fig Sandwiches.—Chop a few figs and add water enough to cook smooth. When a paste is formed add a few drops of lemon juice and a small amount of chopped nuts. Spread on thinly sliced and buttered bread.

When crackers are the only bread at hand, spread them with cream, cheese and chopped olives well mixed and a few pecans, also chopped.

Grated maple sugar with chopped and browned walnuts is another good sandwich filling.

Heart and Home Problems

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

(Mrs. Thompson asks those who write to her to be a little patient in answers to their letters as not published at once. Her mail is so large that it is impossible to reply to all immediately, but full justice will be done to everybody asking her advice.)

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—I have a gentleman friend I think a great deal of and think he does me of. They say we should wait a year and then if I think he is worthy of me I could go. I have quit him and he takes it so hard I don't know what to do. Would there be any harm of me going with him to see his married sister in an automobile with a gentleman and his wife? I know his sister before she was married and moved away. Do you think if I should quit for a year that he would grow apart? He said he would wait for me and would not go with any other girl.

MISS E. B.

Your parents probably have a good reason for wishing you to wait. Probably you are too young to marry now. Wait the year and if you really love each other you will not grow apart.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) What will take fleecies off our arms and faces. (2) Should a young man go out of the door first, or a lady? (3) How should girls of fifteen and sixteen wear their hair? (4) Is twice a week too often to write to our boy friends? (5) Would it be all right for two girls to go out alone at night? (6) What is a good candy recipe besides fudge? (7) Should girls our age go to domino parties? (8) Which should speak first—boy or girl?

BLISS AND BROWN EYES.

(1) Buttermilk of lemon juice. (2) He should stand aside while she goes out. (3) Put in two braids and wind about head, crown fashion. (4) Once a week is enough. (5) No. (6) Try cream candy: To 3 lbs. white sugar add ½ pint water, set over slow fire for half hour, then add 1 teaspoon vinegar. Boil until brittle (try in cold water), then take off fire and flavor with vanilla or what you like. Rub hands with butter, pull candy until white and twist into sticks. (7) Not a public masquerade. (8) The girl.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been married only three months and within the last six weeks have had several small quarrels with my husband; none of them amounting to much, but in all they start by him calling me names, such as "boob," "Mutt-head" and other vulgar names I am ashamed to mention. I am only seventeen years old, while he is nine years my senior. Is he treating me right by addressing me thus?

LITTLE READER.

He isn't very gentlemanly. Little Reader, but don't quarrel with him. When he gets angry, keep your temper.

her and leave him to work it out in solitude. There's nothing like silence and loneliness to make a man realize that he has done something ungentlemanly. Don't be too sensitive, either. It's possible that he thinks he is funny when he calls you names like that.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I had a nice Irish girl, twenty-six years old; myself twenty-three. I learned to love her so much that no other can take her place. Now she has another fellow and tells me she could never learn to love me enough to marry me. Why didn't she say that before? Now it is too late for me. I do not feel like living any more in this world. I have no bad habits and am not bad looking. H. M.

When did you ask her to marry you—when she started to go with the other fellow. Some men delay asking the important question, thinking they have the girl anyway, until she gets tired waiting and loses all the affection she ever had for them. Don't be foolish. You'll get over it and find another girl you will like just as well, in time. If she is fickle you don't want that kind for a wife. Just show her what she missed by making a fine man of yourself.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

INFLAMED TONSILS AND RHEUMATISM

It has been found that in articular rheumatism the tonsils are frequently inflamed and some authorities (Vosanyi and Lenart, particularly) have suggested that the infection enters through the tonsils. It is pretty well established that rheumatism is a nutritional disease, although it is now known that it has its specific germ, as consumption has, which is now treated as a nutritional disease. Life is maintained by nutrition and the various diseases are but forms of malnutrition or of infection made possible by defective nutrition, in which assimilation and elimination of food are fundamental, and hence the importance of proper feeding. The defensive forces of the blood are maintained by nutrition. Consumption and pneumonia germs can not establish themselves in a well-nourished body.

SAVE THE BABIES

Pertinent Suggestions on the care of the little ones during the hot months.

Readers are invited to use this service by asking questions of Dr. Smith regarding specific cases. Answers will be published in these columns in the order questions are received. Personal replies will be given at no cost when stamped envelope is sent with question. Address all questions to Dr. Smith, care of the Daily Gazette.

THE NEW BORN BABE.

"Wouldst paint the Madonna's glad glory"

Of motherhood's glamorous grace? Then need you model whose story Is writ like a book in her face? A face filled with love, joy and gladness.

A wonder, surprise, and these—

With peace, free from surmise of sadness.

Confidingly placid, content."

G. H. Bogart, in "Clinical Medicine."

The first bath: Instead of having the new born baby given a bath of soap and water, I prefer to have him rubbed over thoroughly with a good quality of Olive Oil. The oil will keep in soft skin on cotton sheet (never wool) and laid away in his crib or basket in a quiet corner. I have found that in most instances that baby will sleep for hours this way. This gives the mother a chance for a much needed sleep, the baby will be stronger and better for his long nap. After twenty-four hours the baby may be given his bath of soap and water. Under certain conditions I have this bath deferred two days or even longer.

Just soap won't do, be sure that you get real soap; real soap won't bite your tongue when you taste it. Use only enough soap in the water to answer the purpose, then rinse all the soapy water off. I do not advise the soap bath daily. If you want to know why, suppose you try it on yourself for a week or two, and remember the baby's skin is very much more tender than yours.

Is it any wonder so many babies suffer skin diseases? Give the baby his daily bath in water that has been boiled. Keep his clothes, towels, bathtub or basin separate from the family's toilet articles.

Establish the habit of regularity in feeding and troubles will be few. Give the new born baby water, which has previously been boiled, twice daily. This is important.

Never be guilty of "coddling" the baby. Never let him know what it is to be rocked, or "trotted," or carried. Let him sleep as long as he likes and cry when he wishes. In other words, use judgment and common sense and you will be repaid a thousand times over by having a good, easy-to-care-for baby.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

Edna K. Woolley

Do You Ever Talk Like This To Your Husband?

"Henry! Have you hung that picture yet?"

"You haven't! You promised an hour ago you'd do it. Well, I know I said there was no hurry, but I don't see why you should sit down and read the paper first. It doesn't make a bit of difference about things if they're for me, of course! I suppose I'll just have to take the hammer and do it myself."

"Let it alone! Oh, all right, then, I will, but it seems to me that every day I learn more emphatically if I want a thing done in this household I've got to do it myself."

"You have only one holiday? Well, my goodness, I never even have that. A woman has to keep slaves, slaving, slaving all the time and never getting any thanks for it. No matter what day it is I have to work, and yet you grumble if I want you to hang a picture. Didn't grumble? Well, it certainly wasn't a very nice thing the way you snatched the picture from me. You said you'd fix that chair that has the screw out, too, but I suppose you'll have to go to the ball game before you do that."

"I'm not being sarcastic and you needn't growl under your breath that way. Upon my word, if I had not the patience of an angel, I never should be. You're so disagreeable about things. And you've got to shave, too. The Millers are coming, and you simply can't see them that way."

Valeska Suratt's Secrets of Beauty

"The Art of Art is to Conceal Art"

One of the most disheartening sights to me is to see a woman whose features reveal the abominable habit of "pulling things out." Powder is slipped on so carelessly that it appears in spots, rouge is put on so thick as to give the face a dowdy, vermillion; the eyebrows and lashes are penciled so heavily as to make the user look like a clown.

This is dense ignorance, yet we find women of supposedly great refinement and station guilty of this unbecoming habit. Do not forget that the excessive use of such toilet articles, as a rule, defeats its own purpose. The woman who always "looks perfectly natural," the woman whose face is a study in itself, is the woman who has learned to use her features as they are, and not to try to make them look like something else.

Don't overdo. Don't forget you are not making up for the stage when you go on the street, and besides you should wish rather to be known as a woman who does not need a thick cover of powder, rouge and pencil, than one who does. To put too much on, or badly, calls attention to your very defects, and besides, it will continue to tell your readers in these columns how they can be beautiful instead of being merely painted counterfeits.

Mrs. L. P. C. asks how to get rid of spots, muddy complexion.

Boil half a pint of water. Add two tablespoonfuls of glycerine. Keep stirring while adding and continue adding until it is all dissolved. Then let cool. If the cream is too thick to pour easily from a bottle, thin it down with a little warm water. The cream will be white and satiny. After bathing in the morning hold a wet, hot towel to the face several minutes. Rub the cream on the face with the fingers. Rub the cream on the face, liberally. Let the cream dry on the face. Repeat this again at night. By good practice with this cream, no man pretends to pronounce a woman who causes the crowd to gaze at the landscape on her features, in other words, the art of art is to conceal art.

If you use this, you may not even need powder except to take off the "shine" or oiliness which is always unavoidable. Your skin will radiate with a purity and pearliness admirable.

"IOPEFUL" does not need to hope; she can be absolutely certain of getting rid of blackheads. "Fingering" will cure them. Then it helps for the time being.

Dissolve twelve ounces of granulated sugar in one-half pint of water, and add one ounce of white vinegar. Stir the whole together thoroughly, then add more water to make a pint. You will have one of the most splendid and effective people remedies. If it is possible to obtain "Sarsaparilla" in a liquid which you can get at the drug store for seventy-five cents, take one to four teaspoonfuls of this mixture three or four times a day, with a little water if desired. This is absolutely safe for any one.

MISS H. F. wants to know whether it is harmful to wear bust pads. Reason it out yourself. Anything which presses on muscles, heart and perspiration in such cases is harmful, and often disastrous. However, if you still persist in wearing them, you can assuredly do so, if you will be faithful in using the following:

In a half-pint of hot water, dissolve two ounces of vinegar and half a cup of sugar. All well mixed together. Of this, take two teaspoonfuls three or four times a day in a wine glass of water after you meal.

In a few weeks, you should notice a visible result, and later on you should need no pads or substitutes whatever. This is one of the most remarkable preparations I have ever heard of. I know it will do the work, and I know it is perfectly safe. The medicine you can get at the drugstore for a dollar. You will also find the development materially assisted by massaging the bust with the oiler cream mentioned.

"DISSATISFIED" should get a small piece of cotton, wind it around the end of an orange-wood stick. Dip this in peroxide of hydrogen, which you can get at any drug store, and run it under the finger nails. This acts as a bleach and cleans the under side of the finger-nails perfectly.

MRS. W. D. S. I will send you the proper method of reducing enlarged hips.

PREMATURE says she is 31 years of age and looks like 45. She wants to look her age again, or look even younger, if possible. If you had asked me this a few years ago I would have said "impossible." But now I say "almost." I know of quite a few women who have produced really phenomenal results in rejuvenating their appearance by using the following formula: It has the effect of removing wrinkles and making the face look plump and youthful. I use this myself and it is my "standby."

In one-half pint of boiling water, pour two tablespoonfuls of glycerine. In a few minutes add two ounces of sugar and continue stirring until all is dissolved. At first it will look like jelly, then it will start to cream. When it does this, remove from the fire and stir constantly until cold. Keep in air-tight jar. You should be able to get equal at any good drug store and it

Valeska Suratt

Apply this cream every morning with the tips of the fingers, after washing your face with very warm water and soap. Rub in well until the cream has disappeared. This cream will not grow thick.

LILY G.: I would not advise you to use anything of the kind you mention, as I do not know what it contains. If you want a shampoo worthy of the name, that will clean your hair as you probably never had it cleaned before, and that will leave the hair beautifully silky and not so hard to manage, dissolve one teaspoonful of castile soap in half a cup of hot water. When entirely dissolved and the solution has become lukewarm, pour onto the hair and shampoo in the usual manner. It makes an exquisite lather. After rubbing it well into the scalp so it is perfectly clean, wash the hair thoroughly with plenty of warm water and rinse with cold water. This eliminates every particle of dirt and grit that accumulates on the hair and scalp. The result will let you have the eggs for not more than twenty-five cents.

Important Announcement

Owing to Miss Valeska Suratt's enforced absence for several weeks abroad, where she goes for the procurement of her new wardrobe and for the preparation of her theatrical engagements this winter, the appearance of these weekly talks on beauty will be suspended until the week of September 1.

Women Workers in Japan.
The Chugai Shogyo Shimbun has been investigating the question of female labor in Tokyo, and announces that various economic causes are driving women to seek their occupation in fields which have hitherto been occupied solely by men. The total of the female population is 752,000, of whom 191,000 seek their livelihoods outside their own family circle. Of these, maid servants number 69,000, dress-makers 26,000, and shop assistants 24,200. The barmaids and hotel servants number 20,000, while teachers and professional women are 14,500. The women workers of Tokio form 80 per cent of the total working population of the capital. Among them widows and girls, ranging in age from 15 to 60, predominate.

BOY SCOUTS RETURN FROM MILTON TRIP

Spent Yesterday At Clear Lake Leaving For Janesville About Six O'clock Last Night.

Scoutmaster Jaekle and his troop of Scouts returned from their hike to Milton Junction and Clear Lake shortly before seven o'clock this morning. The boys camped a short distance out on Milton avenue last night making the trip from Milton Junction after night fall. This was a new departure for the scouts as it was the first expedition taken after dark. It was the intention after leaving the Junction to continue until they reached home, but as several of the boys were tired it was thought best to camp when they were still several miles from the city at eleven o'clock. The boys left Janesville about ten o'clock Monday morning. They camped a short distance out of Milton Junction Monday night on the Chambers farm and proceeded to Clear Lake early yesterday morning. Tents were pitched at Clear Lake and the boys enjoyed the day bathing in the lake, playing scout games and resting after their journey. They were welcomed by persons enjoying their outing at Clear Lake and also received a number of visitors from the Junction at their camp on Monday night.

On account of the difficulty of carrying rations, future trips will be only for over night. The next hike will probably be taken to Beloit the latter part of this week.

MANY ENJOYED MUSIC OF BAND LAST NIGHT

Greater Third Ward Carnival Company, Give Second Entertainment This Evening.

Vandeville and band music has taken the place of the carnival company's shows in the efforts of the young girls and young men of the Third ward to raise money to equip a playground with suitable apparatus. Last evening the members of the Bower City band donated their services for the occasion and gave a very pleasant concert in front of the big tent erected on Jackson street. That the music was acceptable to many was evidenced by the fact that a large audience, in autos, buggies and other vehicles lined Jackson street and several hundred stood about and enjoyed the selections rendered. It was a nice thing of the band boys to donate their services and much appreciated.

Following the concert a vaudiville show was conducted inside the tent which was most acceptable and well rendered. Little Miss Muggleton carried off the honors of the evening by her clever stage work and others gave equally delightful parts in the olio. The show, with variations, will be repeated this evening.

At eight tonight the Moose band, of twenty-one pieces, will give a complimentary concert, having also donated their services to the cause and doubtless many will be delighted to avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing Janesville's newest band. In concert, after their successful bow to the public last week in the Court House park.

The money raised from the vaudiville show and sale of novelties at the stands will all be used to aid in equipping the proposed playground. The boys in charge of the affair have worked hard for the success of their pet project and deserve great credit for their undertaking.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

THE TRAGEDIAN.

By Howard L. Rana.

The tragedian is a low-browed thosphan who is hired for the purpose of stabbing somebody in the fourth act in order to lift the mortgage from the old homestead. His equipment consists of a gloomy mien, a four-foot stride, a detachable beard and a Prince Albert coat, and he usually enters just as the villain is about to kidnap the only daughter of an unmarried widow. Tragedians usually start from the bottom and work up. The harder they work the more painful it is to be present. It is a very difficult thing to find a facile, non-perspiring, tragedian who can run 100 yards in the English language without losing two or three suspender buttons. E. H. Southern is one of our most seductive tragedians and earns quite a little money during the winter months. Mr. Southern got his start playing on the bass tuba in the parade, and now see where he is! He is as the very pinnacle of fame, and can make love to Julia Marlowe all he wants to without being interrupted by her husband. This should teach us that all honest toil is ennobling. Mr. Southern does most of his tragedy in Shakespeare's plays at $6 a throw. His favorite piece is "Romeo and Juliet," in which he displays some of the most velvety styles of unbridled love-making known to any stage. Mr. Southern's work in this direction has been on inspiration to many a bachelor who was too terrified to propose. The tragedian is not allowed to use any of his own language, but has to memorize long, loose-fitting words borrowed from some ancient playwright whose expressions are too polite for the malis. Whenever a tragedian forgets his lines, he has to substitute a part of his own vocabulary and cry "Sdeath" several times in succession, until he can locate the plate.

SLEEP

Did you, sleepless one, ever try a dish of GRAPE-NUTS and CREAM just before bed?

Sure you never did or you wouldn't train with the "sleepless squad."

It's a bad Practice to load up the stomach with a promiscuous variety of rich, indigestible food at night because it "tastes" good.

Strength Without Bulk is a requirement of an ideal food for the last bite before going to bed. The food that is concentrated so that a sufficient amount for all purposes will not distend the stomach; the food that is practically predigested so the organs can, without undue effort absorb it wholly; the food that contains the tissue-repairing and energy-making elements from clean field grains—that contains the Phosphate of Potash which combines, by vital process, with albumen to repair the gray matter in brain and nerve centres—that's

Try a Dish—about four heaping teaspoonfuls with cream, and a little sugar if desired, eaten slowly before retiring, if you're hungry, and note how well you sleep and how fresh you feel in the morning.

Law Laid Down to Butchers.

Paris butchers of the sixteenth century must have been rather rough in their manners. In 1570 a decree was issued wherein the butchers were expressly enjoined not to ill treat, or use abusive language to the ladies of this city, or the women of low degree, or the servant maids who propose to deal with them. They are on no account to mock or deride the said ladies, women and maids, but are to receive politely all offers made to them for their goods." This order was formally announced in the streets of Paris to the sound of the trumpet.

LABOR DAY TAG DAY FOR NEW HOSPITAL

City To Be Divided Into Sections, Each With Its Leaders And Assistants—Big Sale Anticipated.

Labor Day, Monday, September, the second, is to be another Tag Day for Janesville, this time for the benefit of the new hospital, now in the course of construction. The city will be portioned off into sections, each with its leader and full corps of assistants, who will hunt-hole everyone in sight who does not wear the tag indicating he is already a contributor to the worthy cause. The new hospital will be of great value to the people of Janesville and vicinity, as the present hospital accommodations are far from adequate. The building is being erected at great expense and it is hoped and expected that a large sum will be realized from the sale of tags.

Weather Predictions.
When a hurricane is announced as coming in this direction, conviction that there is no hurricane, or that it is belated, or that it is headed some other way, amounts to a certainty.

The Three Guardsmen

ALEXANDRE DUMAS

"How unfortunate I am!" said she. "Your presence was likely to afford me a delightful company, and I expect, according to all probability, from one moment to another to leave the convent."

"I think I learned you had suffered persecutions from the cardinal," continued milady.

"What I have heard, then from our good mother is true—you have likewise been a victim of that wicked priest?"

"Hush!" said milady. "Let us not even here speak thus of him."

"But you, madame, you appear to be free, and if you were inclined to fly it only rests with yourself to do so."

"Whither would you have me go, without friends, without money, in a part of France with which I am unacquainted? I am alone or being persecuted."

"I have powerful friends, who, after having exerted themselves on my account, may also exert themselves for you."

"Oh, when I said I was alone," said milady, hoping to make the novice speak by speaking of herself, "it is not for want of some highly placed friends, but these friends themselves tremble before the cardinal. The good queen herself does not dare to oppose the terrible minister."

"Oh, you know her, then—that lovely and noble queen?" cried the novice warmly.

"I have not the honor of knowing her personally, but I know a great number of her most intimate friends. I know M. de Treville."

"Oh," cried the novice, "we shall soon be well acquainted, almost friends. If you know M. de Treville you must have visited him."

"Often," said milady.

"You must have met some of his musketeers. Do you know a gentleman of the name of Athos?"

Milady became as pale as the sheets in which she was reclining.

"What is the matter?" asked the poor novice. "Have I said anything that has hurt your feelings?"

"No, no; but the name struck me, because I also have known that gentleman. I know not only him, but some of his friends—M. Porthos, Aramis and D'Artagnan."

"You know M. d'Artagnan?" cried the novice, fixing her eyes upon milady. "By what title?"

"Why," replied milady, considerably embarrassed, "why, by the title of friend."

"You are deceiving me, madame," said the novice; "you have been his mistress!"

"It is you who have been his mistress, madame. I know you now; you are Mme. Bonacieux!"

The young woman drew back in surprise and terror.

"Well, yes, madame," said she. "Are we rivals?"

"Oh, no!" cried milady, with a tone that admitted no doubt of her truth. "Never, never!"

"I believe you," said Mme. Bonacieux. "But why, then, did you cry out so?"

"Do you not understand?" said milady, who had already overcome her agitation, "that M. d'Artagnan, being my friend, might take me into his confidence? Do you not perceive that I know all?"

"Oh, pardon me, pardon me!" cried Mme. Bonacieux, sinking upon the shoulders of milady. "Pardon me! I love him so dearly!"

These two women held each other for an instant in a close embrace. Certain, if milady's strength had been equal to her hatred, Mme. Bonacieux would have never escaped alive from that embrace. But not being able to strangle her, she smiled upon her.

"Tomorrow, this evening perhaps, I shall see him again, and then the past will no longer exist," said Mme. Bonacieux.

"This evening?" asked milady. "What do you mean? Do you expect any news from him?"

"I expect him himself."

"But that's impossible! He is at the siege of La Rochelle."

"Read," said the unhappy young woman in the excess of her pride and joy, presenting a letter to milady. "Humph! The writing of Mme. de Chevreuse," said milady to herself. And she greedily read:

My Dear Child—Hold yourself in readiness. Our friend will see you soon, and he will only see you to release you from that imprisonment in which your safety required you should be concealed. Prepare, then, for your departure and never despair of us. Tell him that certain parties are grateful to him for the warning he has given.

At that moment the galloping of a horse was heard.

"Oh," cried Mme. Bonacieux, darting to the window, "can it be he?"

Milady remained still in bed, petrified by surprise.

"Alas, no!" said Mme. Bonacieux. "It is a man I don't know, and yet he seems to be coming here. Yes, he has checked his horse—he stops at the gate—he rings!"

Milady sprang out of bed and began to dress herself.

"The man is coming here, do you say? He must come either to you or to me."

"Hush!" said Mme. Bonacieux. "Somebody is coming." In fact, the door opened, and the superior entered.

"Do you come from Boulogne?" demanded she of milady.

"Yes, I do. Who wants me?"

"A man who will not tell his name, but who comes from the cardinal."

"Then let him come in, if you please."

"I will leave you with this stranger, but as soon as he is gone, if you will permit me, I will return," said Mme. Bonacieux.

"Certainly! I beg you will." The superior and Mme. Bonacieux retired. The door opened, and a man appeared. Milady uttered a cry of joy. This man was the Count de Rochefort, the agent of the cardinal.

CHAPTER XLIV.

Two Varieties of Demons.

"YOU come?" asked milady. "From La Rochelle. And you?"

"From England."

"How is Buckingham?"

"Dead or desperately wounded. A fanatic has just assassinated him. I wrote to the cardinal from Boulogne."

"His eminence was uneasy and sent me to inquire after you."

"I only arrived yesterday."

"And what have you been doing since yesterday?"

"I have found here that young woman whom the queen took out of prison."

"The mistress of that fellow D'Artagnan?"

"Yes, Mme. Bonacieux, with whose retreat the cardinal was unacquainted."

"Does she know you?"

"No."

"Then she looks upon you as a stranger."

Milady smiled.

"I am her best friend. She is about to be taken away tomorrow or the day after with an order from the queen by D'Artagnan and his friends."

"These men certainly will go so far we shall be obliged to put them into the Bastille at last. But the cardinal has a weakness with respect to these men which I cannot account for."

"Tell him this, Rochefort; tell him that our conversation at the Red Dovecote was overheard by these four men; tell him that after his departure one of them came up to me and took from me by violence the safe conduct which he had given me; tell him they warned Lord de Winter of my passage to England; that this time they had nearly made me fall in my mission as they did in the affair of the studs; tell him that, among these four men, two only are to be feared—D'Artagnan and Athos."

"But these four men must be now at the siege of La Rochelle!"

"I thought so, too, but they are on the road hither to take her away. What did the cardinal say with respect to me?"

"I was to take your dispatches, written or verbal, to return post, and when he shall know what you have done he will think of what you have to do."

"Then I must wait here?"

"You are to let me know where to find you."

"I may not be able to remain here. My enemies may arrive at any minute."

"Is this little woman to escape his eminence?"

"Bah!" said milady, with a smile that only belonged to herself. "Did not I tell you I was her best friend?"

"Now, then, what had I better do?"

"Set off back again directly. It appears to me that the news you hear is worth the trouble of a little diligence."

"My chaise broke down coming into Lillers."

"I want your chaise."

"And how shall I travel then?"

"On horseback. In passing through Lillers you will send me your chaise with an order to your servant to place himself at my disposal. You have, no doubt, about you some order from the cardinal. Show it to the abess and tell her that some one will come and fetch me either today or tomorrow and that I am to follow the person who presents himself in your name."

"Very well."

"Don't forget to treat me harshly in speaking of me to the abess. I must inspire confidence in that poor little Mme. Bonacieux."

"That's true. Now where shall I find you?"

"At Armentieres, a little town upon the Lys. I shall only have to cross the river and I shall be in a foreign country."

"Write that name on a piece of paper, lest I should forget it. There is no fear of compromising yourself in that. A name of a town, is it not?"

"Eh? Who knows? Never mind," said milady, writing the name upon half a sheet of paper. "I will commit myself for once by writing."

"That will do," said Rochefort, taking the paper from milady, folding it and placing it in the lining of his hat. "Besides, to make sure I will repeat the name as I go along."

An hour afterward Rochefort set out at his horse's best speed. Five hours after that he passed through Arras.

Our readers already know that he was recognized by D'Artagnan and how that recognition, by inspiring fear in the four musketeers, had given fresh activity to their journey.

Rochefort had scarcely departed when Mme. Bonacieux re-entered. She found milady with a smiling countenance.

"Well," said Mme. Bonacieux, "what you dreaded has happened. This evening or tomorrow the cardinal will send some one to take you away. I heard it from the messenger."

"Come and sit down close to me," said milady. "Then he has well played his part. That man is my brother. Coming to my assistance to take me away, by force if necessary, he met with the emissary of the cardinal, who was coming in search of me. He required the messenger to deliver up to him the papers of which he was the bearer. The messenger resisted. My brother killed him."

"Oh!" said Mme. Bonacieux, with a shudder.

"My brother took the papers and presented himself here as the emissary of the cardinal, and in an hour or two a carriage will come to take me away by the orders of his eminence."

"I understand. Your brother sends this carriage."

"Exactly so. But that is not all. That letter you have received and which you believe to be from Mme. de Chevreuse is a snare to prevent your making any resistance when the persons come to fetch you."

"But it is D'Artagnan that will come."

"Do not deceive yourself. D'Artagnan and his friends are detained at the siege of La Rochelle. My brother met some emissaries of the cardinal in the uniform of musketeers. You would have been summoned to the gate, you would have thought you went to meet friends, you would have been carried off and conducted back again to Paris."

"Oh, my senses fail me amid such a chaos of intrigues! Dear lady, what do you advise me to do? I will listen to your advice with the greatest gratitude."

"In the first place," said milady, "it is possible D'Artagnan and his friends may come to your assistance. If your friends are the more speedy you will be saved. If the satellites of the cardinal are so you will be lost! Wait, concealed in the neighborhood, until you have satisfied yourself who the men were who came to ask for you."

"But where can I wait?"

"I shall stop and conceal myself at a few leagues hence until my brother can rejoice me. Well, I can take you with me. The carriage is at the door; you bid me adieu, you get upon the step to embrace me a last time, my brother's servant, who comes to fetch me, is told how to proceed; he makes a sign to the postilion, and we set off at a gallop. We will send my brother's servant back to Bethune in disguise. If the emissaries of the cardinal arrive, he will take no notice. If they are M. d'Artagnan and his friends he will bring them to us. Tell your good superior that, in order that we may be as much together as possible, you beg her to allow you to take your meals with me."

And the two women parted, exchanging affectionate smiles.

What milady thought most pressing was to get Mme. Bonacieux away and convey her to a place of safety and there, matters so falling out, make her a hostage.

At the end of an hour she heard a soft voice calling her. It was Mme. Bonacieux. The good abess had naturally consented to her request, and as a commencement they were to sup together.

On reaching the courtyard they heard the noise of a carriage, which stopped at the gate. The bell of the convent gate was rung. Milady was not mistaken.

"Go up to your chamber," said milady to Mme. Bonacieux. "You have perhaps some jewels you would like to take with you."

"I have my letters," said she.

"Well, go and fetch them and come to my apartment. We will snatch some supper. We shall perhaps travel part of the night and must keep our strength up."

Milady ran up to her apartment quickly. She there found Rochefort's lackey and gave him his instructions.

He was to wait at the gate. If by chance the musketeers should appear the carriage was to set off as fast as possible, pass round the convent and go and wait for milady at a little village which was situated at the other side of the wood. In this case milady was to cross the garden and gain the village on foot. If the musketeers did not appear things were to go on as had been agreed. Mme. Bonacieux was to get into the carriage as if to bid her adieu, and she was to take away Mme. Bonacieux. Mme. Bonacieux came in, and the lackey left.

Milady made her a sign to sit down before her, poured out a small glass of Spanish wine for her and helped her to the wing of a chicken.

But at that moment milady heard something on the road which sounded like the rattling of a distant gallop, and which drew nearer, and almost at the same time, she heard the neighing of horses. She grew pale and ran to the window, while Mme. Bonacieux, rising all in a tremble, supported herself upon her chair to avoid falling.

Nothing was yet to be seen, only they heard the galloping draw nearer. The horses could not be more than a hundred paces distant. If they were not yet to be seen it was because the road made an elbow.

All at once, at the turning of the road, milady saw the glitter of laced hats and the waving of feathers; she counted two, then five, then eight horsemen. One of them preceded the rest by double the length of his horse. Milady uttered a stifled groan. In the first horseman she recognized D'Artagnan.

"They are the cardinal's guards!" cried milady, endeavoring to drag Constance along by the arm. "Thanks to the garden, we yet can fly. I have the key, but make haste! In five minutes it will be too late!"

Mme. Bonacieux endeavored to walk, made two steps and sank upon her knees.

At this moment they heard the rolling of the carriage, which at the approach of the musketeers, set off at a gallop. Then three or four shots were fired.

"For the last time, will you come?"

A THOROUGH TEST.

Cures that last are cures that count.

Doan's Kidney Pills make thorough cures.

The following case is typical.

Janesville residents should be convinced.

The testimony is confirmed—the cure lasted.

Proof like this cannot be ignored.

Mrs. William Mohs, 310 N. Academy St., Janesville, Wis., says: "About two years ago I had an attack of kidney trouble and at that time I got a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at the People's Drug Store. The use of only two boxes cured me. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills with satisfactory results and I therefore know this remedy to be a reliable one." (Statement given in August 1908.)

THE BENEFIT LASTED.

Mrs. Mohs when interviewed on September 23, 1910, said: "I gladly confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. They permanently rid me of kidney complaint and during the past two years, I have had no further need of kidney medicine."

cried milady.

"I cannot walk. Fly alone!"

"Fly alone, and leave you here! No, no, never!" cried milady.

All at once she remained still, a livid flash darted from her eyes; she ran to the table, poured into Mme. Bonacieux's glass the contents of a ring which she opened with singular quickness. It was a grain of a reddish color, which melted immediately.

Then, taking the glass with a firm hand:

"Drink," said she; "this wine will give you strength, drink!"

And she put the glass to the lips of the young woman, who drank mechanically.

"This is not the way that I wished to avenge myself," said milady, replacing the glass upon the table with an infernal smile, "but we do what we can!" And she rushed out of the room.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Gazette, Aug. 7, 1872.—A political meeting will be held at Lappin's hall, under the auspices of the Grant and Wilson club of this city, on Saturday evening. A telegram was received this afternoon from General Isaac Sherwood, of Ohio informing the club that he would be present and address the meeting. General Sherwood is secretary of the state of Ohio and the republican candidate for congress from the sixth district of that state. He is now visiting in Waukesha.

The Harris Works are also to be ornamented with a Grant and Wilson flag. The people of this city appear to run to republicanism. Eight Grant banners and one for Greeley have already been heard from, and more of the former will probably be unfurled. Yes, this is a Greeley city but we don't hear anything about it excepting through the democratic papers.

Martin Whalen, the victim of yesterday's sandbank accident, is suffering considerably today, but his physician does not anticipate any serious result from his injuries. The speed with which he was resurrected saved his life, as another minute of immersion would probably have proved fatal.

Smith's elegant block is nearly completed. When finishing touches are laid upon the work we propose to give a complete description of this indication of Janesville's enterprise. It will be a good thing to send away.

O. L. DeForest has issued circulars to the capitalists of Janesville containing the propositions for the establishment of extensive lime works in the city. This locality is especially adapted to the business represented by Mr. DeForest.

The Y. M. C. A. library and reading room will be reopened tomorrow. The ladies of the Congregational church are preparing for an ice cream festival at the church parlors on Friday evening.

demanding their silly rights. And, ever, my friends, 'tis thus; there's always some foolish fuss recalling the things you hate; there's always some futile noise disturbing your humble joys, and the foolkiller pays the freight. You cannot, alas, forget the weary and gray and tear; there's always some chump on hand to dig up the grief you've earned, and brandish it in the air. There's always some chump on deck, some pitiful human wreck, to rake up the Gloomy Past; and never will end the gloom till we croak and pass up the flume, and dodge all the bores at last.

Loss That Might Be Avoided.
According to government report, 2,600,000 cattle die every year in this country from disease, exposure and neglect.

VACATION MONEY.
By stopping all the little leaks
And having pleasures few,
I save enough in fifty weeks
To last me two.

A Discovery.
"A number of women have been found regularly engaged in the hold-up business."
"Good gracious! Who are they?"
"Baby nurses."

Rude Language.
"Some women's hats,"
Said Julius Wherle,
"Do blame my state!"
Just make me choke."

Those Useless Questions.
A Santa Fe train ran over a cat.
"Was the cat on the track?" asked a woman passenger of the conductor.
"Oh, no," he replied. "We chased it out into a cornfield."

The Robin.
The early robin gets in line
To raise our spirits that have sunk.
As a musician he is fine,
But as a weather prophet—punk!

"Well, goodbye, Mr. Chirp. I hope you'll remember the number!"

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

Take special care of your health and try to avoid small illnesses, for they may result in more serious ones. Caution in all departments of your daily life is the message for the following year.

Those born today will have impulsive natures and will be quick to imitate other people, whether good or bad. They should be lead away from the habit and taught to have an individuality of their own.

Youthful Justification.
George—"There, Aunt Mary, what do you think of that? I drew the horse and Ethel drew the jockey." Aunt Mary—"H'm! But what would mamma say to your drawing jockeys on a Sunday?" "George—"Ah, but look here! We've drawn him riding to church, you know!"

Gibes at the Clergy.
A Kansas editor refers to the burning of 12,000 chickens at Hutchinson as "a severe loss to the ministry."—Kansas City Star.

PUBLIC IS ASKED TO AID IN THE MATTER

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.

The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.

There are any number of concerns in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.

Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.

But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the column.

The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.

Some Item On This Page May Be the Opportunity of a Lifetime

THE RATE FOR ADVERTISEMENTS in these classified columns is 1/2-cent a word cash each insertion. No order for less than 25 cents. The charge rate is 1 cent per word. Address can be given care of Gazette if so desired.
